FRANCO'S LEGACY - SPAIN'S STOLEN CHILDREN

52', 70' (SPA, ENG subs, GER subs)

During the dictatorship of Francisco Franco in Spain, many children, especially the offspring of those who starkly opposed those with political power, were robbed of a life with their parents.

While some children were pronounced dead by unscrupulous doctors, others were forcibly given up for adoption. Even 20 years after Franco's death, forced adoptions were still being practiced. Due to a system run by politicians, doctors and members of the church, this practice was a lucrative business.
