

NATURE . WILDLIFE

WILD RIVER RHINE

52' (ENG), 2x45' (GER, FRE)

Alluvial forests, roaring waterfalls, steep canyons and sunny slopes flank the river Rhine. The variety of habitats is the reason for the large biodiversity along the stream.

There is hardly any other river in Germany that is surrounded by as many myths and legends as the river Rhine. No other river has been the topic of songs, has been painted and travelled equally frequently. Despite this it still seems to be true today what the French poet Victor Hugo once said about this river – the Rhine is a river everybody talks about, nobody explores, everybody visits but no one really knows. The film follows the water against the stream. It starts at the river's delta in the Netherlands, flows through six countries and ends in the Swiss Alps.

Original Title:	Wilder Rhein
Year:	2013
Produced by:	nautilusfilm, WDR, NDR, Doclights, BR, ARTE, ORF

