GOING NORTHWEST - GREENLAND BY SHIP

52' (GER, ENG subs)

From Bremerhaven to Greenland - for Morten Hansen, the captain of the "MS Albatros", this voyage is like a dream come true.

He is following the course of his Norwegian ancestors, the Vikings. But first, they have to cross the stormy Atlantic Ocean, where he has to fight 10 meter high waves. The journey via the Davis Strait takes us along the west coast into Baffin Bay; the closer we get to the west coast, the stranger it becomes: demonic sea monsters, frozen mythical figures and gigantic ice cathedrals rise out of the sea.
