THE UNDERGROUND FOOD NETWORK

45' (GER, ENG subs)

Organized criminals have found a new business venture: forging edible goods.

Anything that has a good reputation and fetches a high price can be forged. Though poisoning and death are common results of ingesting these illegally produced and often contaminated foods, those of the trade consider these outcomes small unavoidable hiccups of the business. The documentary accompanies investigators as they search for the manufacturers of counterfeit food. How is the criminal food network organized? Who is behind the making and distribution of the fake food? And what kinds of threat do German culprits pose?
