CHIEMGAU, A CHANGING LANDSCAPE

2 x 45 (ENG, GER)

Thousands of years ago, there existed only naked moraine ridges and barren snow water dales in this region. Nowadays, it is characterized by its gentle hills, moors, seas and cultural richness.

The area was settled long before the King Ludwig II seized the land and since then has been inhabited by many. How then did this constantly inhabited region managed to maintain its biodiversity? The two part documentary takes a look at the past and shows the development of the province that is in a perpetual state of change.
