THE WAR OF INFORMATION

45' (GER, ENG subs)

The dawn of the digital age has transformed computers into battle fields. The soldiers are hackers and information has become the most lethal weapon.

Electoral campaigns have changed in the digital age: due to the internet, they are more vulnerable to manipulation and supposedly fake news. It was proclaimed that in the last elections, the voting machines in America were hacked. In France, the President's account was said to also have been hacked. The purpose: to find and publish information that discredits the respective candidates. The film shows how social media can be used to sway voters and examines the extent to which parliament and parliamentarians are protected from hackers.
