KIPPAS, CHURCHES AND THE KORAN: JERUSALEM AND ITS CONFLICTS

30' (GER)

For centuries Jews, Christians and Muslims have been wrestling with the historically charged birthplace of the three Abrahamic religions.

For all three Jerusalem is a center of their faith. The old town is just one square kilometre in size and is divided into quarters that are based on religions. But Jewish settlers are increasingly occupying empty houses in the Muslim quarter. The tensions are fuelled by the political conflict between Israelis and Palestinians.
